

Founded in 1985, the Social Sciences Academic Press (SSAP), which is officially affiliated with the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences (CASS), has specialized in scholarly publication in the humanities and the social sciences. SSAP's goal is to produce classics of wide and long-lasting influence both within academia and beyond, and increasingly, both inside and outside of China. Some of SSAP's best-known and most highly-acclaimed lines of publications include the Yearbook Series, World States Series, and Series of Brief History of China. We have also published numerous works in a wide range of topics such as globalization, contemporary China, and comparative economic systems. SSAP's reputation as a reliable publisher of consistently high-quality scholarly works in the humanities and the social sciences that represent the best of contemporary Chinese scholarship is hard-earned and well-deserved.

Since 1998, the year of the second major strategic re-orientation since its founding, SSAP has been able to publish at an annual rate of around 600 titles, a volume roughly equivalent to about 200 millions Chinese characters. As demands for products with scholarly contents continue to grow in scale and to diversify in kinds, SSAP has also added magazines, audio-video and digital materials to its repertoire of outputs.

In recent years, SSAP's international presence and activities have been expanding rapidly, which led to the establishment SSAP-International in 2011. To this day, SSAP can claim more than 120 titles of English translation of works by Chinese scholars published in partnership with publishers from the Asia Pacific Region, Europe and North America. SSAP is well on its way to becoming one of the most trusted names and a major publishing powerhouse in China, and its status as a noteworthy international scholarly publisher will continue to rise in the years to come.

China, as one of the cradles of human civilization, enjoys a long history and arich cultural system which features the unique theory that man is a part of nature. Cities are the centre of every culture. In almost every phase and every part of China's ancient cities, we can see the perception of harmonization between human being and nature – from administrative system, town and country planning to architecture, poetry and calligraphy. However, under the tide of industrialization, the harmonization in modern cities has been destroyed by wars, pollutions and exploitation of natural resources. How to restore the lost culture of our nation and rebuild the harmonious relationship between human and nature is an urgent question in today's urbanization.
